The Stratford Standard

Highlights from the Executive Head's desk...

My highlight of the week, naturally, is seeing all the children back at school. It was so lovely to see all our families. The school is once again full of chatter and laughter. At the start of the week we had our butterflies and hearts in the trees but the windy weather has blown some away. Another highlight has been seeing a row of very realistic parrots on the washing line in Year 2. How fabulous they look? Mrs Withers tells me they are not finished yet but they already look brilliant and I can't wait to see the finished product. The children have been very busy this week across the school completing assessments and demonstrating how much they have remembered particularly with their reading skills, mathematical knowledge and writing ability. They have all settled really well and we are looking forward to the sunshine and being able to get out and about soon. Coming next week is Shakespeare week and we have lots of plans to watch live plays as part of the festival, creating a trail of Shakespeare quotes and artwork and finding out so much more about our wonderful local playwright.

REMEMBER:

If your child has a packed lunch please ensure this is healthy with no chocolate, no crisps, no nuts and no fizzy drinks.

15th-19th March - Shakespeare Week

Friday 19th March - Red Nose Day

If you need to contact the school please email the school office and not the teacher's email address in case it is not picked up.

The school calendar is also available on the school website.

Spotlight in...

On 8th March our school returned to something resembling normality - to mark the occasion, each child decorated a heart or butterfly and we hung them from the trees and fences and around the building.

Did you know that 14th March is National Pi day? And we don't mean 'apple pie' or 'meat pie'!

Pi Day has become an annual celebration of the mathematical constant pi (π), founded by physicist Larry Shaw.

The day also happens to be Albert Einstein's birthday.
